

Assembly Instructions

1 After you have carefully removed all pieces from the box, test fit all parts in the appropriate joints to see what clean up is necessary.

2 Using an X-ACTO knife or similar hobby blade, gently remove the parting lines from around the edges of all pieces. (NOTE: Use extreme caution when using any form of knife. Safety glasses are also recommended.) Also, should any piece break during this step, it can easily be repaired with a few drops of glue. See step #5.

3 Next, carefully go over all parting lines with an ultra-fine hobbyist sand paper. This will smooth the remaining lines till they are invisible.

4 Because of the release agents used in the casting process, you will need to wash the model in running water using a mild hand soap. This will remove all additives that would hinder the gluing and painting process. Let the model thoroughly dry before continuing.

5 You can now assemble your model with a few drops of any instant bonding glue (i.e., Crazy Glue, Zap Glue, etc.) Be careful not to use too much! A few drops will do the job. You will only have a matter of seconds before bonding, so make sure the piece is positioned where it should be. (NOTE: This type of glue bonds skin instantly. Do not get on fingers. Should bonding occur, see manufactures note on glue package.) A slower 5 minute A & B epoxy can also be used for assembly. Make sure to clamp, tape or hold all pieces till the glue sets up.

6 Any joining lines, cracks or air bubbles can be eliminated by using some hobbyist putty. Squadron Green Putty or Milliput is highly recommended. Apply putty to seam. Allow it to dry. And by using your fine sandpaper, blend it into the model's surface. This will give your model a professional look when painted.

7 A base or primer coat of paint is recommended. A can of flat white is your best bet because any color can be painted over top of the white with no color change.

8 Any type of hobbyist paint can be used on this kit. However, for a more realistic look, we suggest acrylics. There are many on the market. Liquitex and Pactra paints are good because they can be blended into just about any color.
